Pacificbank changed its name. But not its trust relationships.

On June 1st, Pacificbank and twenty other affiliated banks changed their names to First Interstate Bank. All twenty-one banks have long functioned as a banking network in the West. Now, without any change in ownership or organization, we share a common identity throughout eleven states.

What our name change means to your clients.

As attorneys, you may encounter questions from clients whose previously-drafted Trust documents name Pacific National Bank of Washington in a fiduciary capacity. In most cases, our name change will have no effect on established Trust relationships.

Federal laws¹ permit First Interstate Bank of Washington, N.A. to continue to hold all of these appointments, designations and nominations, without amendment to existing documents. All references to our former name will be considered references to First Interstate, whether the document was executed or took effect before or after the name change.

Special treatment is required for our employee benefit plans, where the bank is a trustee. A modification must be made to the summary plan description within 210 days after the plan fiscal year end, and notification made to the Department of Labor.²

Wanted— More Articles on International Legal Issues

Editor:

The recent article by Bruce Corker in the June, 1981 issue of the Bar News regarding the legal system in China was very intriguing and enlightening!

An increasing proportion of Washington's legal work directly involves international law matters in the Pacific. It would be helpful to many attorneys in Washington who deal with legal issues in Pacific Rim countries to understand more about the lawyers and legal systems in such countries. I would like to recommend that future articles be developed discussing international legal issues for key countries such as Japan, Korea, Hong Kong, Indonesia, the Peoples Republic of China and Australia.

More Praise for Douglas Issue

Editor:

I just recently read with great interest the April issue of the Washington State Bar News, especially the parts about William O. Douglas and the memorial being proposed for him.

It was a beautiful issue and I thank and commend you and the others for putting together such an interesting series of articles about Mr. Douglas's contributions to the field of law as well as his other activities.

William O. Douglas was not only an outstanding outdoorsman who loved our mountains; he took action. He did things or gave his support and blessing to others of us who then were able to go on and save the places that he loved so much. In the view of many of us, therefore, his legacy is not only in his monumental legal decisions or his dissents, but in the mountain peaks and forests of his beloved Cascades or in some of his wild western rivers dancing in the sun.

Thank you again for this outstanding issue and memorial to a great man.

Recognition for Judge Fuller

Editor:

While reading the Washington State Bar News—May, 1981, I noticed that one individual was conspicuous by her absence in the list of notable women attorneys in Washington.

Judge Carol Fuller of the Thurston County Superior Court was one of the outstanding appointments of former Governor Ray. After five years on the bench in Mason County as a District Court judge, Carol Fuller received this well deserved appointment and went on to win a landslide victory in the Thurston and Mason County general elections.

While I'm sure the oversight was unintentional, this is one more woman who deserves the recognition of our State Bar. Carol Fuller has earned her position and our respect through years of hard work. As women attorneys continue their advancement in the legal profession, let's not forget those who led the way.

Missed Tips?

Editor:

Many lawyers have remarked to me that they regretted the suspension of regular publication of our column on "Office Practice Tips" in recent years, assuming that we had abandoned the project. Actually, we have always maintained a backlog of articles, but the Editors have seen fit not to print them. If our readers have a sincere interest in this material, I suggest you write the present Editor and express your feelings in the matter. I would appreciate your sending me a copy of your letter at P. "A Quick, Superficial Cost/Benefit Analysis"

Editor:

The day I received your June issue containing a "President's Corner" suggesting that another dues increase is in the wind, I also received a bill for my dues from the local bar association.

I offer a quick, superficial cost/benefit analysis of the two bar associations: Sea-King dues—$80.00 per year, WSBA dues—$140.00 plus sections.

BENEFITS

S-KCBA

1) Free sections:

Monthly meetings at times and places

all members can attend, for informative talk of recent issues and developments.

2) Continuing legal education:

Seminars geared to the interest of members, kept small for close communication and discussions, and at minimal cost. For example, in the past month two seminars offered a total of 7.5 hours of CLE with refreshments and materials for a total of $18 ($2.40 per CLE hour).

3) General membership meetings:

Monthly lunches at times and places accessible to members and at minimum cost.

4) Publications:

Done by sections, mailed free or at cost to members.

5) Reason for joining:

The foregoing benefits.

WSBA

1) Two sections ($30 added to dues):

Infrequent, generally unannounced meetings at times and places where the majority of section members cannot attend; this is "compensated" by sporadic publication of "quarterly" newsletters which are little more than summaries of appellate court dockets.

2) Continuing legal education:

Seminars geared to the interest of the Board of Governors, made large (effective discussion impossible), and at maximum cost. The great majority of Washington lawyers practice in firms of five or fewer members, and are in general practice. Therefore, the WSBA offers us such day-to-day CLE topics as "Trans-National Taxation", "Real Estate Syndication", and "Condominium Conversions" at a cost of $15 or more per CLE hour.

3) General membership meetings:

Annual meetings anywhere on earth except in the State of Washington, attended by relatively few members.

IMMIGRATION, NATIONALITY & NATURALIZATION

4) Publications:

Washington State Bar News, $2 per copy to non-members; $11.67 per copy to members (cost of dues).

5) Reason for joining:

Threat of disbarment.

But, it can be said, the local bar associations put all resources into membership services. The state bar, it can be said, has a larger responsibility to the public and the profession. So how do these compare?

S-KCBA

1) Legislative lobbying:

None, except as organized through the felt needs of members. Occasional expeditions to Olympia.

2) Member discipline:

None, except for occasional private discussions.

3) Public services:

A very active pro-bono committee with established service mechanisms, plus the lawyer referral service.

WSBA

1) Legislative lobbying:

Full-time lobbyist at a cost of $20,000 to $40,000 per year. This year, the Bar News tells us, we obtained the following "benefits":

a) All filing fees raised to pay for JIS, a program with minimal value to most members;

b) SHB 601 which promises to clear court congestion by twisting lawyers' arms;

c) UCC filings in Olympia instead of locally;

d) An industry-oriented products liability bill.

2) Member discipline:

A wonderful system which threatens the livelihood of every member while earning the profession great praise, as the P. I. series told us.

3) Public services:

Frequent papers, articles, letters, and hand-wringing proclaiming the need for pro-bono work, plus a nascent state-wide referral service.

It appears to be time that the lawyers of this state consider moving toward a system similar to New York and Illinois, which require each lawyer to belong to a bar association, but not necessarily the state bar association.

Living with Inflation or When You Tighten the Belt, Make Sure It's Not Around Your Neck

You knew it would happen. Just when the ballyhoo about a federal income tax cut looks like it might become reality, the Bar Association looks like it will raise its membership dues. In one pocket and out the other, you sigh: is there no justice?

Well, there is justice—it's money we lack.

In the past several months Bar President Brad Jones has warned that a dues increase is imminent [Bar News 35:6:15, 35:7:21]. Unfortunately, he is right. A dues increase cannot be averted without crippling some of the Bar Association's essential functions. Continuing Legal Education, lawyer discipline and administration of the Bar examination account for almost fifty percent of the Bar's total annual budget. These are mandatory functions required by Supreme Court rule. If anything, the cost of administering these functions will rise in the future.

There are two reasons why a dues increase is necessary: 1) inflation, 2) more lawyers. There are more lawyers practicing in Washington than ever before. At the same time the competition increases, the costs of administering a state bar association also increase. Presently there are about 11,000 members of the Washington State Bar Association. It is doubly unfortunate (but true) that as the number of lawyers increases, the cost of operating the Association grows, not proportionately, but geometrically.

Like it or not, Washington's Bar is now in the big leagues. We are not as big as California, true; we are not even as big as the municipal bars of New York City or Washington, D.C. We are getting there though. And like it or not, as we grow, so must we accept bigger, more sophisticated bar machinery which will coordinate, control and internally regulate the whole profession.

There are alternatives, of course. We can cut back, pinch pennies, tighten our belts. For example, we can keep funding for lawyer discipline at about the same level it is at now. That may result in the premature deaths of certain overworked Bar counsel, but it will save some bucks. It will also be a real boost for critics of the profession who claim that lawyers are a clubby group incapable of policing itself anyway.

We can raise the price of admission! For example, we could triple the Bar examination fee and turn it into a profitable enterprise. Better yet, we can not admit any new members to the Bar at all. That draconian measure will solve all our problems. Unrealistic? Of course, but it will save lots of money.

We could immediately desist from all lobbying on behalf of lawyers in the State. That will save us a bundle. It will not be wise. Generally, those who represent the interests of the Bar before governmental bodies fairly represent the interests of the public, too. The other side of the coin is that, frankly speaking, there are people out there who just plain don't like lawyers. Some for good reasons, some for bad reasons. But when their voices are heard, it is right for the Bar Association's voice to be heard, too.

What about the Bar News? Could the Bar save $170,000 a year if this magazine ceased publication? Actually no. According to the Washington State Bar Association Audit for Fiscal 1979-1980 [Bar News 35:6:81], the Bar News in 1980 generated $170,253 in revenue and spent only $148,474, thus finishing on the plus side with $21,779. Of course, when "indirect costs" such as prorated expenses for rent, electric lights etc. are plugged into the equation, the final figure incredibly ends up showing a deficit. Not only does no other state bar news organ in the country carry the burden of "indirect costs", but that "deficit" figure does not reflect the savings to other Bar functions which benefit from no-cost promotion of state-wide activities (articles were contributed to this issue, for example, which publicize activities for the upcoming Annual Meeting).

The ultimate money-saver is to abolish the State Bar Association altogether.

Make Bar membership voluntary. Decentralize.

You can try it, but it will not work.

This state's Bar cannot go back to the 'good and simple' days any more than the United States can go back to the Articles of Confederation. You need a state organization because you have a far-flung state with all kinds of lawyers with all kinds of interests. You need an organization to represent you state-wide because, as a profession, you have some very big duties and responsibilities. That is what your code of ethics is all about. You need a state bar association because you might otherwise become too provincial.

A bar association is like a law practice. You have to lawyer first-class, or you cannot get the job done. You have to look first-class, or you lose credibility. You have to conduct yourself first-class, or you risk ruining your reputation. Going first-class takes money. You have to pay for it.

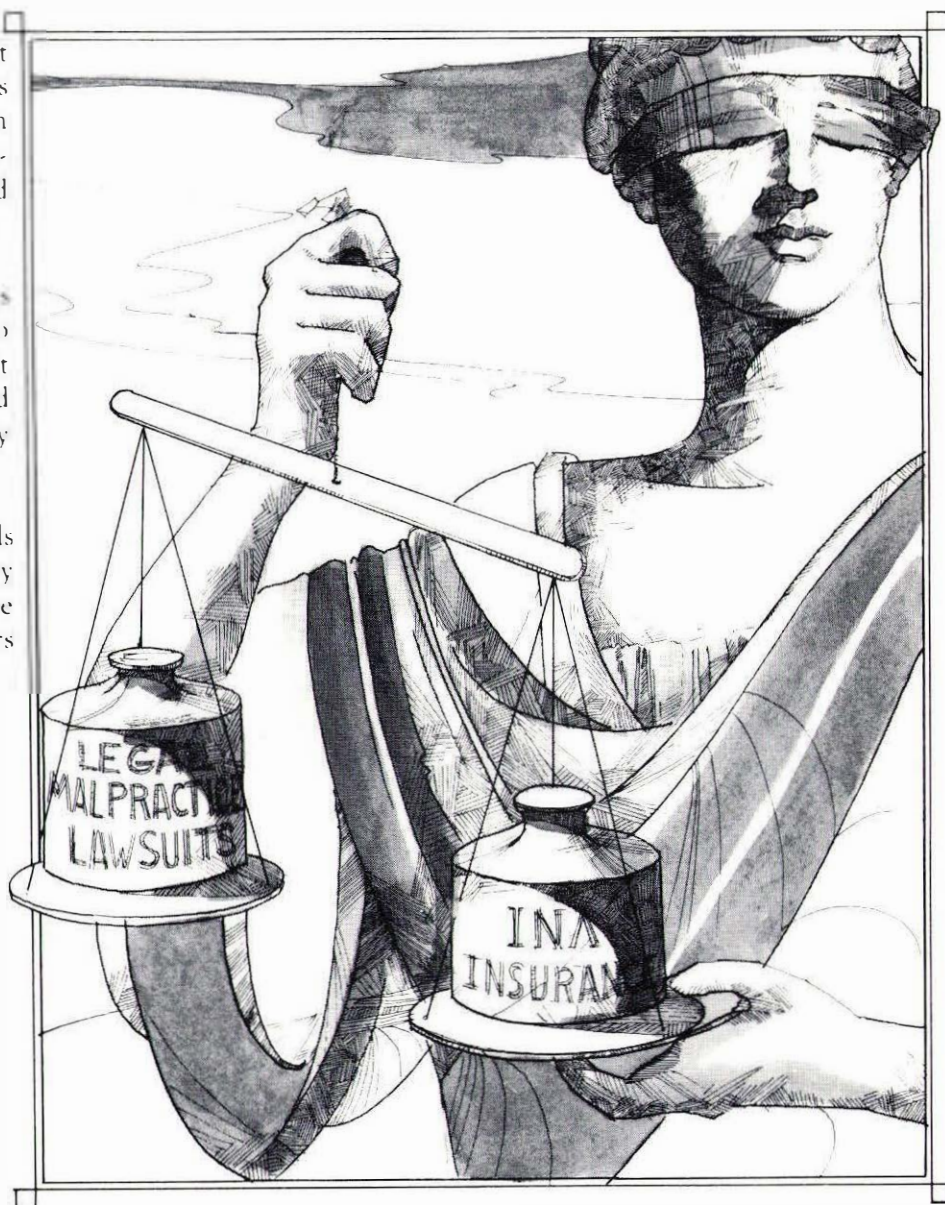

Can the Bar Association trim some fat? Probably. Can a dues increase be avoided? I doubt it. We can forgo the dues increase and simply tighten our belt; but watch out—the belt may slip around our necks.

Keep the Scales of Justice balanced-in your favor!

Malpractice lawsuits are rising at an alarming rate with settlements to match. The attorney's optimum recourse for keeping justice balanced is to be adequately covered by professional liability insurance.

If an INA covered attorney is sued for malpractice, INA goes to bat for him. INA will save him lost time in court and keep his good name from being permanently damaged.

An Appreciation

This is the last of my series of columns in the Bar News as President. I am taking this last opportunity to record my personal appreciation, and that of our Bar, for the splendid people who help our Association perform its professional and public duties. It performs these duties well and I'm privileged to have been close enough to the workings almost to understand the machinery of it.

First, I recognize our members' contribution of voluntary services to the Association in committees, sections, task forces and boards. We have 13 sections, 36 committees, 2 current task forces and boards for discipline, CLE, specialization, Bar examination, and the Editorial Advisory Board and Board of Governors. These, together with CLE panelists and others, involve, in a rough estimation, somewhere in the neighborhood of $3 million of donated professional time, certainly as much as the total cash flow budget of the Association.

G. Edward Friar

The willingness of the members to serve is significant. Each year there are volunteers for committee service in more than double the number of opportunities for committee assignment.

Second, the Bar staff is dedicated, industrious and productive. As noted in a prior article, with a smaller staff than in comparable states, our Association provides more services (I believe also better services) and on a lower dues structure, than such other states.

Those comments, however, are merely background for expressing respect for G. Edward Friar, our Executive Director. The reason for focusing on particular appreciation for Eddie at this time is threefold: This month he achieves his 65th birthday; this month also marks ten years of his service as our Executive Director; and, at the ABA Annual Meeting this month, he assumes duty as President of the National Association of Bar Executives. We're glad this is only an extra and part-time duty and will not impair his service to us.

You should know that over a period of time Eddie has been asked to take on administration of other and bigger state bar associations than ours and of the ABA, all at substantially higher compensation than we afford him. His designation as President of the Bar Executives is merely a formal recognition of the respect and regard in which he's held throughout the organized bar. Asked why he stays with us when larger opportunities are available to him, he answers it's because he loves us. Maybe, or maybe in part. Perhaps climate, fishing, golf courses and the like may have a part as well.

In a number of years of close association with him I've observed his consistently pleasant and optimistic manner, his genuine affection for our profession, and a personality and supervisory ability that produces a long-term and loyal staff, and the willingness of our members to devote themselves to Association work.

I'll record a few personal matters about Eddie simply so you'll know him better. He's a widower, has one son and one grandson (residing in Atlanta). Eddie attended Princeton and his law degree was from the University of Tennessee. He was admitted to the Tennessee Bar at age 20. He was a highly successful lawyer in Tennessee. His periods of partnership practice were interrupted by naval service in World War II and by his service as Secretary of State in Tennessee. One of his partnerships actively survives; his earlier partners are now respected judges. He's an early riser, ordinarily before 4:00 a.m. Correspondingly he's early to bed (after 8:30 only with extreme reluctance or if there's a night baseball game). He's never taken a vacation in his ten years of service to us, only an occasional day or afternoon off and usually in company with Association members with whom matters are pending.

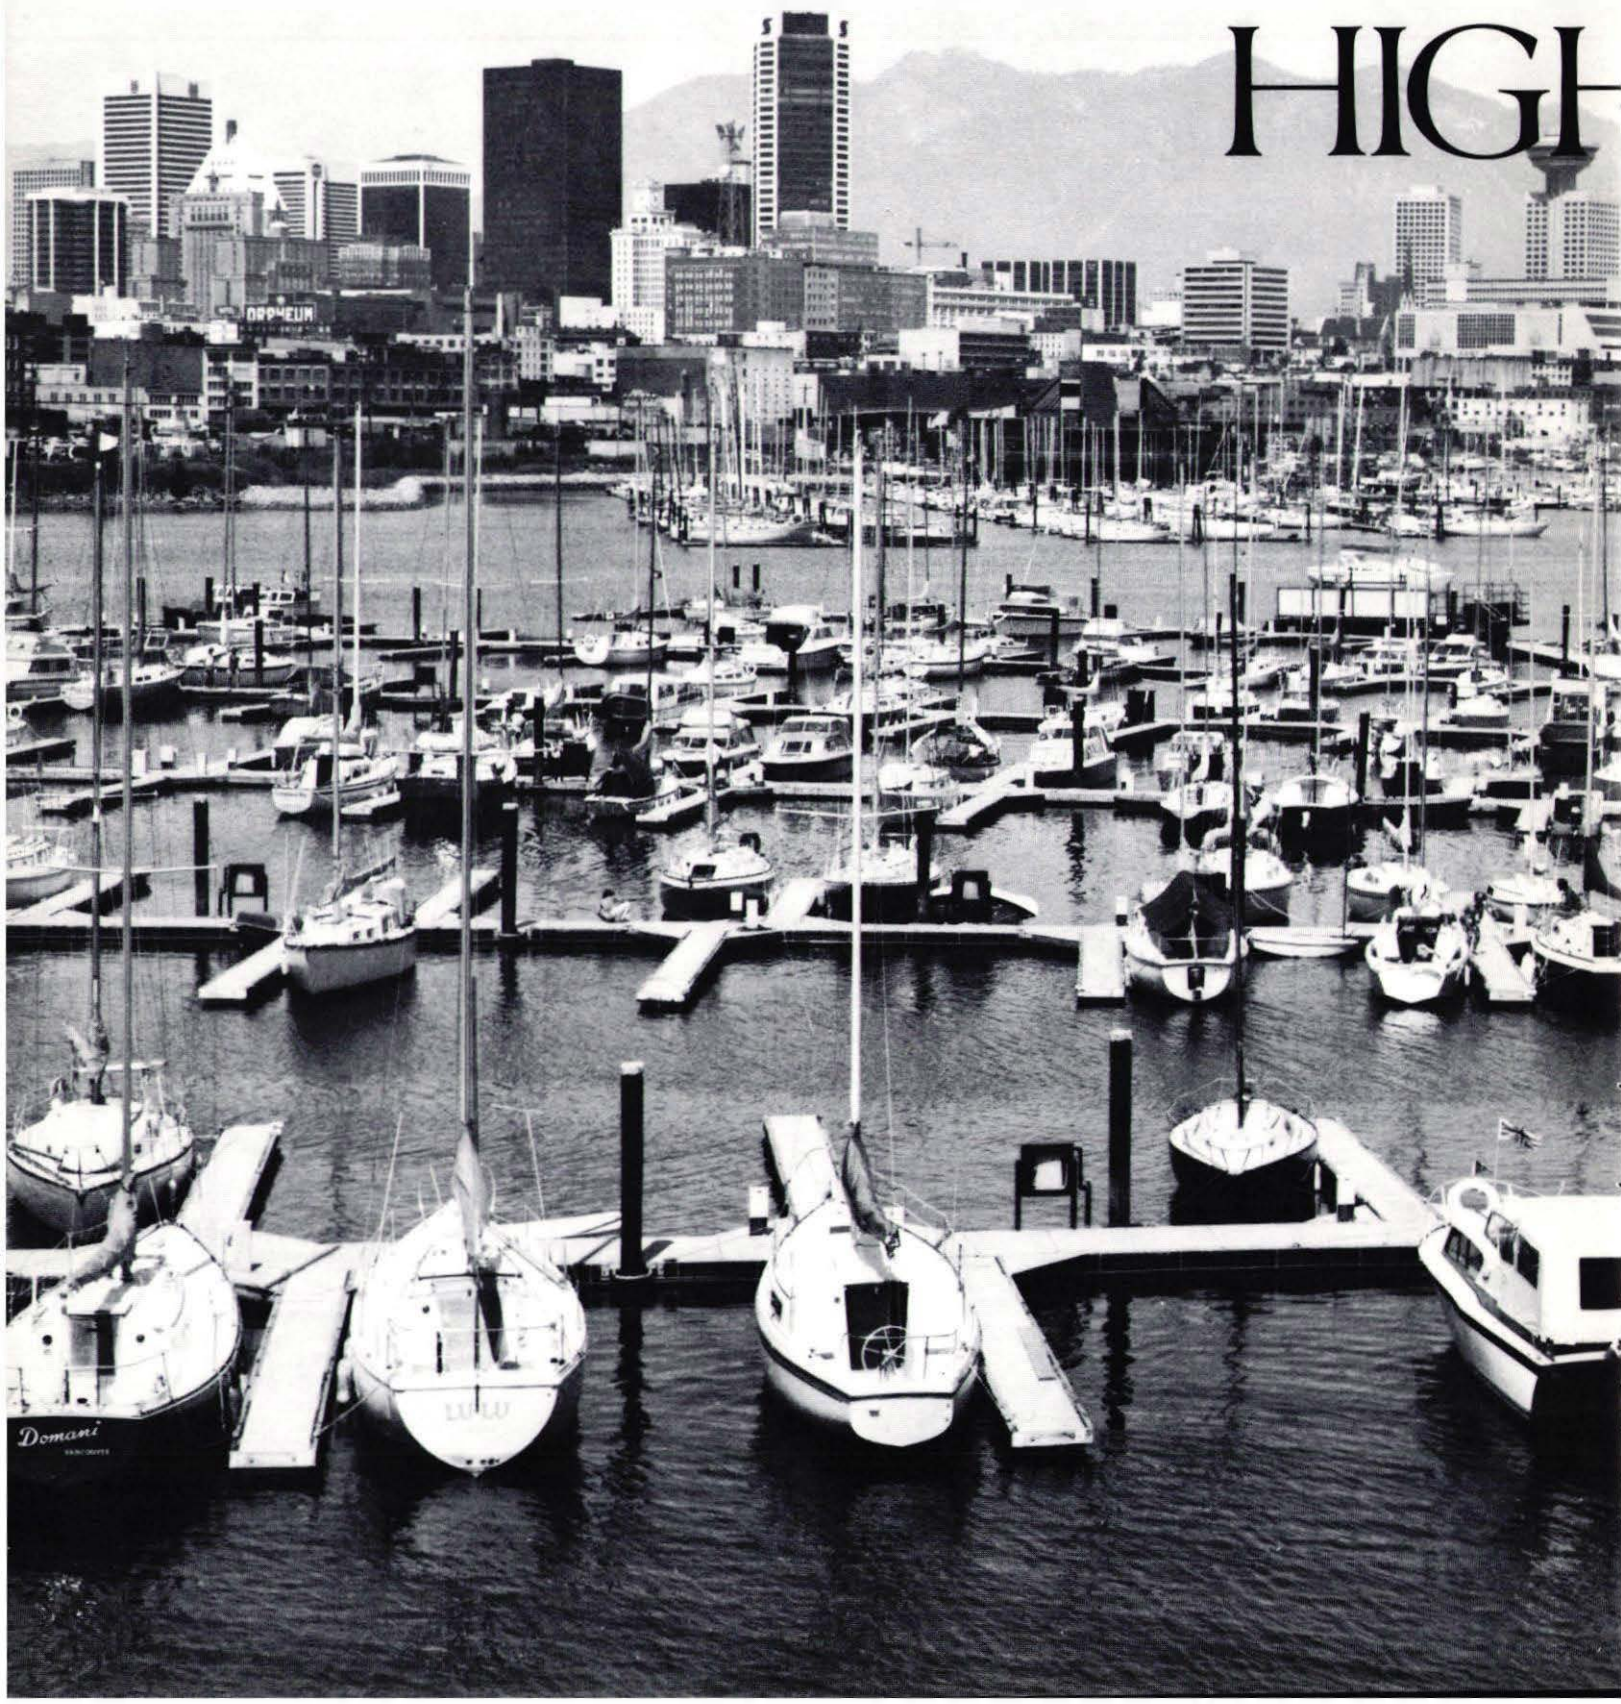

He works long hours, he solves problems quietly and effectively, he gets things done. He succeeds in operating with a low personal profile, but his results are highly visible monuments to his effectiveness.

So finally, as the last paragraph of my last "President's Column", I record for all of us our admiration, affection and appreciation for Eddie Friar. I congratulate him; I congratulate us for having him with us.

This year we return to visit an old friend as we hold our 92nd WSBA Annual Meeting in the spectacular Northwest metropolis of Vancouver, B.C. A frequent site of past WSBA Annual Meetings, its attractions continue to grow. Nowhere is there a more exciting combination of world-class ambience and natural scenic wonders, for first-timers and crusty veteran travelers alike.

Experiencing Vancouver this fall will be both the appetizer and the dessert of your travels. The main course—as usual—will be a State Bar Annual Meeting with a national (and well deserved) reputation for unsurpassed professional programs and social events. Here's a sample of the menu:

CLE At Its Finest

Your CLE Committee and 11 sections have planned a program that promises to be CLE's finest hour. Beginning at 9:00 a.m. on Wednesday, September 16, and running thru Saturday noon, September 19, 13 informative sessions will be presented in four days. If you stick to your guns, you will be able to soak up a maximum of 18 CLE credits. See page 19 in this issue for a detailed schedule of CLE seminars to be presented.

Part of this year's CLE offering will be an extraordinary opportunity to enjoy the words and thoughts of one of the most gifted minds in the profession.

Irving Younger will be the featured lecturer at the Trial Practice Section seminar on Friday afternoon. His topic will be "Expert Witnesses: A Look at Technique and Testimony." No other seminars will be offered during that time in order to permit maximum attendance.

The former Samuel S. Leibowitz Professor of Trial Techniques at Cornell Law School, Professor Younger is now a partner in the Washington, D.C. law firm of Williams and Connolly and an adjunct professor of law at Georgetown University Law Center. He has had a varied and distinguished career in the law including service as an Assistant United States Attorney, trial attorney and judge; and a teaching career which, in addition to his many years at Cornell, has included positions on the faculties on the law schools at New York University, Columbia University, Harvard University, and the University of Naples, Italy.

Professor Younger has earned a well-deserved reputation for excellence in each of these areas, and you may expect his lecture to reflect that reputation. Don't miss this rare opportunity.

Whether you plan to attend the full offering of CLE seminars or a selected few, you will also take home, as always, an outstanding 1981 CLE Annual Meeting Handbook, this year containing some 1,000 pages of useful, stimulating course material.

Speakers Who Really Make Headlines

We are pleased to present three superb luncheon speakers who literally "make the headlines" as nationally respected representatives of their professions. Each brings a rich repertoire of experience in both career and speaking talents. And each, as you will see, generates an excitement about his profession that will create an interesting and memorable time for you.

Our luncheon speaker on Wednesday, September 16, will be a colleague who has been named by the national press as one of the Top 10 Trial Lawyers in America—and for good reason.

While he is of small physical stature and in appearance looks more like a scholar than a trenchfighter, he possesses the toughness and gritty stamina that have earned for him a truly formidable reputation as a defense attorney. If we mentioned that Houston is his home base, you might guess that the man is Richard "Racehorse" Haynes.

Active as a constant contributor to the legal profession, Mr. Haynes' primary career track has been as a criminal defense attorney. He has earned praise from allies, competitors and judges alike in his unrelenting drive to give 100% effort to each and every case. And—his record of many favorable decisions in even the most difficult cases attests to that.

Among his many professional activities, he is a member of the Permanent Lecturing Faculty, National College of Criminal Defense Lawyers and Public Defenders; the Board of Directors of University of Houston Alumni Association; the Executive Committee, American Academy of Achievement (and a recipient of the Academy's Golden Plate Award); and the Board of Regents, National College for Criminal Defense.

Mr. Haynes is a speaker who feels equally at home before lawyers, judges, educators, and the public. Those who have heard him have commented that his wit and wisdom make his lectures as entertaining as they are educational. We think you will agree when you hear this colorful speaker at our Wednesday luncheon.

On Thursday, September 17, our luncheon speaker will be Irving R. Levine, one of America's most respected and best-known television news commentators. He brings 25 years of experience with NBC News in the United States, Europe, and Asia to the lecture platform.

Based in Washington, D.C., Mr. Levine is Economic Affairs specialist for NBC News and is seen regularly on NBC-TV Nightly News, the "Today Program," and News Specials. He is a frequent panel member on "Meet the Press."

Mr. Levine has covered every major economic development in Washington since 1971 when President Nixon instituted wage and price controls and devalued the dollar. Prior to his present assignment, Mr. Levine spent ten years in Italy, four years in the Soviet Union, three years in Korea and Japan, and a year in England. His NBC News coverage echoes the history of a quarter of a century: the Berlin airlift; the Korean war and truce talks; the Khrushchev years in Russia; the convulsive coming of Independence to the Congo and Algeria; the fighting in

For Spouses Only: Getting Down to Business

Dressing for success is always an interesting challenge, especially when it can directly enhance your career growth. We are delighted to have an internationally known authority on this topic for our 1981 Spouses' Program.

Lois Fenton will speak at our Thursday Spouses' session on Executive Wardrobe Planning, or Dressing for Success. Whether spouses are in the midst of a career, contemplating one, or want to make the right impression in all their contacts with people, this program will be brimming with useful information and tips.

In a superb, double-your-pleasure bonus presentation, Ms. Fenton will also speak on the topic of "Company's Coming." This lively blend of humorous anecdotes, practical party tips, and step-by-step demonstrations of exciting table settings will present a formula for parties without panic. Ms. Fenton's realistic, sophisticated approach to entertaining with flair includes mixing and matching guests, using color imaginatively, expressing your own personality, and enjoying your own party—each one a skill that will enhance your own reputation as a party giver.

Ms. Fenton is an internationally known speaker, author, and consultant. You may have seen her on NBC-TV or read about her in The New York Times or The New Yorker. She has been featured in scores of magazines and newspapers from Alabama to Hawaii, and she has spoken to men and women at every major resort and hotel from coast to coast and on board cruise ships throughout the world.

We think you will enjoy these fascinating presentations and their proven suggestions for personal and social growth.

Attention Sports Fans & Fiends!

The State Bar is pleased (we mean really pleased!) to present its fifth annual bash of super sports and athletic events. Here's your chance, to have fun, get a little exercise, and even win a prize! We'll offer contests of all shapes and sizes for people of all shapes and sizes. Whatever your physical condition or level of athletic skills, we have something for you!

If golf is your thing, be sure to register for the Annual Golf Tournament, to be played Thursday, September 17, at the superb University Endowment Lands Golf Course. A variety of prizes will be given in several classes, including low gross, low net, highest admitted score, longest drive, closest to the pin on the selected Par 3, et cetera.

Returning to where it was born among much anticipation, excitement, and rain, the No-Fault Tennis Tournament will be conducted September 16-18. The matches will be weatherproofed again this year, with play scheduled on the covered courts of the Western Indoor Tennis Club in Richmond, B.C. Entrants will be matched according to ability and/or inability.

And... the fifth annual Race Ipsa Loquitur (a world-renowned classic) will be run again around the beautiful sea wall promenade of Stanley Park on Thursday, September 17. Whether you take on the full six mile course or some lesser (but not less important) distance, there may be a prize for you! Be there!

Full details for each of these events will be given out at the Annual Meeting registration desk.

The Annual Meeting social schedule is packed with reunions, breakfasts, hospitality suites, and many other events. And the grand finale, as always, will be the fabulous Friday Nite Gala Dinner, Dance and Show, this year featuring comedian Mike Neun—one of the most popular entertainers ever to appear in Las Vegas. Offering routines in hilarious high style, Mike has appeared in Vegas, on tour and on national television with such celebrities as Ann-Margaret, Andy Williams, John Denver, Johnny Carson and Mike Douglas. Your ribs will hurt from laughing!

Friday Nite Bonus No. 1—Popular pianist Walt Wagner will also be featured. Long a favorite with Northwesterners as well as on the national scene, Walt Wagner has been described as an outstanding talent, and has earned enthusiastic encores with brilliant improvising. A review in the Portland Oregonian said, "There are not any with whom he can be compared. There are touches of wizardry that subtly remind of jazz and rock, yet he has the technical fluidity of a classical craftsman."

Friday Nite Bonus No. 2—"The Ladies of Light"! This dynamic singing group is currently taking Canada by storm. Currently booked for a premier engagement at Harrah's, the group is scheduled to be a regular on the new Bobby Vinton show.

You'll enjoy this vintage mix of great entertainment at the Annual Meeting grand finale in this spectacular city!

We look forward to seeing you all in Vancouver. You'll experience four days of professional growth, with a liberal serving of social times and entertainment along the way. Don't miss it!

If you haven't made reservations for the Convention, do it today... Advance registration assures that you need stop only briefly to pick up badge, tickets, gift books, etc. Room reservations should be made directly with Vancouver hotels. □

WASHINGTON STATE BAR NEWSLINE

The Board's Work

by Steven A. Reisler

BOARD APPROVES $2.9M BUDGET, DUES INCREASE OF $10-$25/YEAR

OCEAN SHORES, July 24-25 — In a sometimes tense meeting punctuated with an occasional accusatory outburst, the Board of Governors approved a proposed 1981-82 budget of $2,948,120.00. That figure represents about a $300,000 increase above the projected budget for 1981. Among the major line items included in that budget are headquarters rent ($143,500), the Annual Convention ($125,000), legislative representation ($125,000), the Bar News ($186,000), Bar Exam ($193,750), and Continuing Legal Education ($432,000). These figures represent projected expenditures for the next fiscal year and do not reflect the amount of revenue which each individual activity may generate.

In order to avoid going into the red, the Board reluctantly voted to raise the cost of practicing law in Washington. First, the Board unanimously voted to remove the ceiling on CLE seminar registration fees and mandated that the CLE program should endeavor to become self-sufficient in 1981-82. Second, the Board unanimously voted to increase the Bar Examination fee to $250 plus an additional $175 for lawyers already admitted elsewhere. Third, Board members voted to increase the registration fee at the Annual Meeting to $50 for lawyers in their first two years of practice and to $100 thereafter. A measure to reduce registration fees to $50 for lawyers above age 70 was also approved. Fourth, with Third District Governor Ed Holm dissenting, the Board voted to increase annual dues to $95 for lawyers up to two years after their year of admission and to $165 for everyone else.

Specific items considered by the Board:

- BAR NEWS - Despite anticipations that the Bar News will generate nearly $200,000 in advertising revenue in the next fiscal year, the magazine will still end up with a projected direct expense deficit of about $45,000 (primarily due to spiraling printing costs). Editor Reisler told the Board that policy considerations should actually determine how much money should be expended on the magazine. He said that it did not matter how the magazine was funded as long as it was able to accomplish its intended purpose. The Editor also told the Board that, in his opinion, the Bar News could not ever be self-sufficient -- like Amtrak, the U.S. Postal Service or the Army, if you want it, you will have to pay for it.
- LEGISLATIVE REPRESENTATION - Although almost $125,000 are allocated for legislative representation in 1981-82, Executive Director Friar noted that none of that money goes into anyone's campaign coffers. The money is primarily used to support lobbying efforts for legislation supported by the Bar Association. In the preceding fiscal year, the Bar retained one full-time legislative specialist and one part-time specialist, although the special pressures of the last legislative session significantly increased lobbying expenses.

● CONTINUING LEGAL EDUCATION - By far, the most heated debate concerned CLE. In 1981 the CLE budget was projected to be about $460,000. In 1982 it is projected to be slightly less at $432,000. Third District Governor Holm asked for an explanation of what that money is used for and why CLE always ends up in the red. He pointed out that other states actually turn a profit with their CLE programs. Holm also wanted to know why the State Bar's CLE offerings seemed to be in price competition with WSTLA seminars.

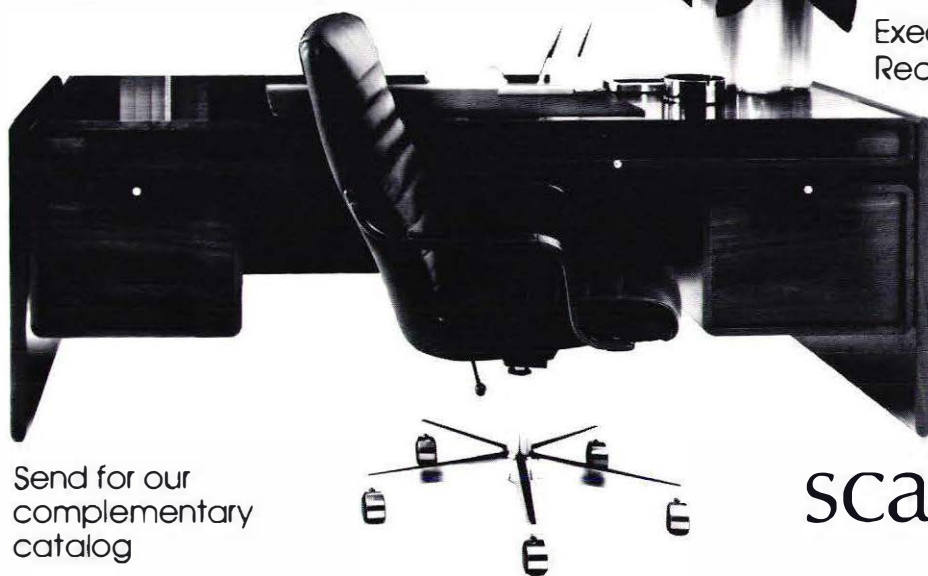

President Jones advised the Board that at its inception CLE was designed not to be a money-maker. The intention, Jones explained, was to show members of the Bar that mandatory CLE was designed to achieve a laudable objective and not to generate income. He explained that it would have been "dirty pool" to mandate 15 hours of CLE per year per lawyer and then to make a profit on it.

Friar pointed out that the quality of the WSBA CLE program accounts, in part, for its high costs. Unlike some Legal Education programs, WSBA CLE seminars will not be cancelled because of low enrollment, nor are they geared solely toward the big money-generating seminars. As with the Bar News, printing costs account for a large percentage of CLE expenses. Board member Wesselhoeft stated that he thought most opposition to mandatory CLE came from older attorneys, but that younger lawyers rarely complain about it.

A motion by Holm to make CLE both self-supporting in 1981-82 and to make it recoup its nearly $89,000 1981 budget deficit failed by a 5-3 vote. Some expressed concern that the Bar Association's tax exempt status could be jeopardized if some of its activities actually started to turn a profit.

The rawest moment of the meeting came when Holm questioned the Board's ability and right to make budgetary decisions without first considering policy objectives. He argued that it was impossible for him to vote for a nearly $3M budget on only a few weeks notice without considering the policy objectives of CLE, the Bar News, legislative lobbying, the Annual Meeting, Bar Examination costs, etc. Holm said that budget decisions could not be made in a policy vacuum. He complained that the budget has always been brought up as an all-or-nothing proposition at the last possible minute, and that he never learns about the prior year's shortfalls until the new year's budget is proposed.

President Jones responded that it was wholly impractical to consider the policy objectives of every single line item in the budget. He said this is the time to decide what we are going to spend and where we are going to get the money. Realistically, Jones noted, budget decisions can neither be deferred nor advanced. The next year's budget cannot realistically be proposed until sufficient information has been learned about this year's expenses. Jones further commented that policy decisions should be made by the Board of Governors throughout the year, and not reserved for the meeting when the budget comes up for consideration.

The final budgetary decisions represented a compromise between necessity and political reality. The dues increase passed by the Board is intended to be both palatable to the membership and sufficient to carry the Association through the next few years (barring unforeseen expenses) without another dues increase.

● NO POSITION ON CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION - By a 5-4 vote, with President Jones casting the tie-breaker, the Board voted to take no position on SJM 105 which calls for a national constitutional convention to mandate a federal balanced budget. Although Board members stated almost to a man that they personally would not favor convening such a constitutional convention, the majority opinion was that it was a political matter about which the Bar membership was itself fairly divided. Second District Governor Pete Dewell argued that the Bar could take a position on the methods by which the Constitution is amended without getting into a political brouhaha about balanced budgets. Peter Greenfield, representing Seattle-King County Young Lawyers said that lawyers - who deal with the Constitution in a way laypeople do not - could make a real leadership difference on this issue. Donald Haley, speaking on behalf of the Loren Miller Bar Association told the Board that a constitutional convention could easily rewrite the whole Constitution without carefully considering the ramifications.

OTHER BOARD ACTIONS:

Proposed Draft for Disciplinary Rules Approved -- With minor modification, the Board passed a resolution submitting a draft proposal for revised Disciplinary Rules to the Supreme Court and recommended their approval.

CLE Supplemental Filing Fee Boosted -- Although compliance with mandatory CLE rules is getting better, the Bar still imposes a supplemental late filing fee for lawyers who fail to satisfy their requirements within the proper time frame. The Board approved a motion to boost that filing fee to $100 and sent the matter back to committee.

Instructions To ABA Delegates -- The Board voted to instruct Washington's delegates to the ABA House of Delegates: 1) to oppose tying the salaries paid state court judges to the salaries paid to their federal counterparts; 2) to support a measure opposing legislative curtailment of the jurisdiction of the federal courts; 3) to oppose a recommendation by the ABA Young Lawyers Division that would grant reciprocal admission to practice for attorneys with three years experience who graduated from an ABA approved law school.

THE NEXT MEETING OF THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS WILL BE AT THE ALDERBROOK INN, UNION, WASHINGTON, AUGUST 21-22.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This issue of the Bar News appeared late in order to accommodate resolutions submitted in accordance with the by-laws.

RESOLUTIONS

...To Be Considered at the 1981 Annual Meeting of the Washington State Bar Association

According to the bylaws of the Washington State Bar Association, resolutions and reports received by the Resolutions Committee at least 60 days prior to the Annual Meeting are to be published in the Washington State Bar News prior to such Annual Meeting. These resolutions are reproduced below.

The Resolutions Committee earnestly solicits written responses and comments from members of the Association regarding proposed resolutions and requests that any such responses and comments be submitted to the Resolutions Committee, c/o the Washington State Bar Association, 505 Madison Street, Seattle, Washington, 98104. The function and purpose of the Resolutions Committee is to report to the membership of the Association upon each resolution, giving its recommendations, proposed amendments thereto, or comments thereon.

Compulsory Arbitration of International Disputes

BE IT RESOLVED that the Washington State Bar Association supports efforts to develop procedures for compulsory arbitration of international disputes by approving the following resolution:

RESOLVED, that Article 33 of the United Nations' Charter be amended by adding the following additional paragraphs:

3. If the dispute is not resolved under paragraphs 1 and 2 of this article by other specific means of settlement, any party to the dispute may request that the matter be settled by arbitration.

4. The party requesting arbitration shall notify the Secretary-General of such request. Thereupon the Secretary-General shall notify the other party of such request; such notice shall state that a request for arbitration has been made, and that the other party should respond by agreeing to arbitrate or to submit the dispute to the International Court of Justice. The other party must respond to such notice and make its selection of a panel member within sixty (60) days after receiving the notice.

5. If arbitration is selected as in paragraph 4 above, the Secretary-General shall submit the dispute to a Board of Arbitration composed of three (3) qualified members. Each party to the dispute shall appoint a member to represent it on the panel. The chairman of the panel, who shall not be a national of either party, shall be selected by mutual agreement of the arbitrators selected by the parties. If the arbitrators selected by the parties shall fail within sixty (60) days to select a chairman, the Secretary-General shall appoint the chairman. The decision of a majority of the panel shall be binding on the parties.

6. If arbitration has been selected and the party to a dispute refuses to arbitrate or to appoint a member to represent it on the panel within sixty (60) days after being notified that the requesting party has appointed a panel member, the Secretary-General shall, upon request of the requesting party, appoint a panel member to represent the other party on the panel.

7. A state which is not a member of the United Nations may request that a dispute between it and a member be settled in the same manner as a dispute between members is settled.

Report on Proposed Amendment to Article 33 of the United Nations' Charter

The purpose of this resolution is to place the Washington State Bar Association alongside associations of lawyers and jurists throughout the world who seek to stimulate and focus debate on specific proposals to promote the peaceful settlement of international disputes. The adoption of this resolution by the members of the Washington State Bar Association would be communicated to other states' bar associations, the American Bar Association, the World Peace Through Law Center and its affiliates, the World Association of Lawyers, the World Association of Law Professors, the World Association of Law Students, the State Department, and the Senate and House Committees on Foreign Relations. The Section does not suggest that adoption of this resolution would lead directly or inevitably to the amendment of the United Nations Charter. However, the Section does believe that the proposal provides an opportunity for encouraging the development of peaceful dispute-settlement mechanisms.

In joining the United Nations, the member states have already committed themselves to seek resolution of international disputes through peaceful means. Article 33 presently reads as follows:

- “1. The parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger of maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.
2. The Security Council, shall, when it deems it necessary, call upon the parties to settle their dispute by such means.”

The desirability of providing a specific arbitration mechanism in the Charter has long been recognized by lawyers and scholars. At a succession of World Peace Through Law conferences, the delegates have adopted resolutions calling for the amendment of Article 33 to provide a method by which a party to a dispute may compel an adversary to submit to arbitration. The specific mechanisms suggested in the resolution proposed by the Section were drafted and adopted by a group of scholars and judges who met in Milwaukee in 1971 through 1973 to consider various proposed arbitration mechanisms.

The Section has not attempted to rewrite or edit the proposed amendment. Obviously, reasonable people could differ on virtually every detail, from the number of members on a Board of Arbitration to the number of days allowed for selection of members. Some could argue that the proposal is too detailed. Others might argue that it is not specific enough. However, the Section concludes that such a debate would be appropriate only when sufficient agreement had been achieved in the world community on the need for compulsory arbitration machinery.

The Section believes that lawyers by training and experience understand the necessity for providing mechanisms for the settlement of disputes that are agreed upon before the disputes arise. As the late Chief Justice Earl Warren said at the 1973 World Peace Through Law Conference in Abidjan, Ivory Coast:

“The lawyers of the world should be the first to agree that the responsibility is theirs to initiate a movement to have the problems of nations solved by means other than war.”

The World Peace Through Law Section of the Washington State Bar Association urges the membership to approve this modest and symbolic act for promoting international peace and security through promoting compulsory arbitration as one method for the peaceful settlement of disputes.

tain specified areas of international relations. The United States' resolution described the scope of the World Court's jurisdiction in the following manner:

"[A]ll legal disputes . . . concerning

- (a) The interpretation of a treaty;
- (b) Any question of international law;
- (c) The existence of any fact which, if established, would constitute a breach of an international obligation;
- (d) The nature or extent of the reparation to be made for the breach of an international obligation;

Provided, that this declaration shall not apply to

- (a) disputes the solution of which the party shall entrust to other tribunals by virtue of agreements already in existence or which may be concluded in the future; or
- (b) disputes with regard to matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of the United States of America as determined by the United States of America; or
- (c) disputes arising under a multi-lateral treaty, unless (1) all parties to the treaty affected by the decision are also parties to the case before the court, or (2) the United States of America especially agrees to jurisdiction."

The United States, by reserving to itself the right to determine whether a dispute is "domestic" in nature, undercut the ICJ's ability to determine the extent of its own jurisdiction; an ability which is fundamental to the effectiveness of a court of last resort.

Other nations around the world took notice of this expression by the United States of its lack of confidence in the trustworthiness of the Court. For example, in an early case presented to the Court involving human rights violations, Bulgaria claimed that the Court lacked jurisdiction because the case involved issues within Bulgaria's domestic jurisdiction. Bulgaria cited America's Connally Reservation as a basis for its rejection of the ICJ's jurisdiction.

The World Peace Through Law Section is advocating repeal of the Connally Reservation as a step toward vitalizing the ICJ, and international institution which has the potential of playing an important and constructive role in the peaceful resolution of international disputes. The World Peace Through Law Section's proposed Resolution is based on a growing realization that, with the recent and dramatic escalation in the nuclear arms race, the establishment of a respected and impartial international tribunal for resolving disputes between nations is one of the world's most urgent needs.

Resolution for the Amendment of the United Nations Charter and Annexation of the Statute of the International Regional Courts and Courts of Specialized Jurisdiction

This resolution is presented by the Washington State Bar Association, World Peace Through Law Section, U.N. Reform Committee and was drafted by David A. Bateman.

BE IT RESOLVED, that the Washington State Bar Association urges the president of the United States to recommend to the United Nations the adoption of the following amendments to the United Nations Charter:

1. That new paragraph 2 of Article 92 of the United Nations Charter be added as follows:

- 2. International regional courts and international courts of specialized jurisdiction shall be established. These courts shall be created in accordance with the annexed statute and shall be subject to the administration of the International Court of Justice. Decisions of these courts shall be binding upon the parties but shall be subject to appellate review by the International Court of Justice.

2. That paragraphs 1 and 2 of Article 94 of the United Nations Charter be amended as follows:

- 1. Each member of the United Nations undertakes to comply with the decisions of the International Court of Justice, International Regional Courts, and International Courts of Specialized Jurisdiction in any case to which it is a party.
- 2. If any party to a case fails to perform the obligations incumbent upon it under a judgment rendered by ~~(the Court)~~ these courts, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may, if it deems necessary, make recommendations or decide upon measures to be taken to give effect to the judgment.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the substance of the following concepts and language be incorporated into a separate statute to be annexed to the Charter of the United Nations.

Resolution Report

The United Nations has provided numerous valuable forums for the expression of political ideologies and positions on an increasing number of international issues. Some diffusion of world tension has resulted thereby. On balance, however, the International Court of Justice (ICJ) which provides potentially the greatest hope for the ultimate peaceful resolution of international disputes, has gone largely unused.

The purpose of the attached resolution is to provide an opportunity for expanded use of the international judicial forum through the broadening of the competence of the ICJ. This is accomplished through the creation of inferior International Regional Courts (IRC) and International Courts of Specialized Jurisdiction (ICSJ). Potential and actual international adversaries will enjoy a more expedient, effective and decisive means of resolving their disputes and will thereby be encouraged toward greater utilization of the judicial arm of the United Nations.

The ICJ will continue as the high world court with both original and appellate jurisdiction. Decisions of the IRC and ICSJ are reviewable by the ICJ.

American Convention on Human Rights

BE IT RESOLVED that the Washington State Bar Association urges the Senate of the United States to give its advice and consent to the ratification of the American Convention on Human Rights subject to 9 reservations, understandings and declarations as proposed by the Secretary of State and approved by the American Bar Association; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this resolution be forwarded to the Senators of the Washington State delegation and that it be given wide public dissemination.

Report on American Convention on Human Rights

In 1969, with active participation by United States delegates, the American Convention on Human Rights was negotiated by members of the Organization of American States at San Jose, Costa Rica. The Convention was signed by the President of the United States on June 1, 1977, subject to "advice and consent" by the United States Senate.

The Convention required ratification by eleven nations of the O.A.S. before it could be implemented. Several more than the required 11 have now ratified, and the Convention is presently in force. The Inter-American Court of Human Rights provided for in the Convention is now functioning and it includes one Judge from the United States.

The Convention declares specifically those "essential rights of man" which require international protection. It is an undertaking by governments which ratify the Convention to respect human rights within their borders and to adopt laws to give effect to human rights.

For the most part the Convention recognizes on an international level rights which U.S. citizens already enjoy under the Constitution and laws of the United States. The rights protected are detailed under Articles on the following subjects: Right to Juridical Personality, Right to Life, Right to Human Treatment, Freedom from Slavery, Right to Personal Liberty, Right to a Fair Trial, Freedom from Ex Post Facto Laws, Right to Compensation (for miscarriage of justice), Right to Privacy, Freedom of Conscience and Religion, Freedom of Thought and Expression, Right of Reply, Right of Assembly, Freedom of Association, Rights of the Family, Right to a Name, Rights of the Child, Right to Nationality, Right to Property, Freedom of Movement and Residence, Right to Participate in Government, Right to Equal Protection and Right to Judicial Protection.

In addition, the Convention provides for an Inter-American Commission on Human Rights to promote respect for and defense of human rights, with broad functions and powers of investigation, reporting to the O.A.S., and acting on petitions and communications to it; and it provides for the Inter-American Court of Human Rights to rule on human rights cases and determine fair compensation for violations. State Parties to the Convention and the Commission may submit cases to the Court.

While the Convention is basically consistent with the Constitution, laws and practice of the United States, there are a few exceptions, which would not be in accord with United States law, or the law of some states. Examples are the provisions dealing with limitations on capital punishment and the right to protection by law "from the moment of conception", both of which are unsettled matters in the United States. Article 75 of the Convention provides that it may be ratified with reservations.

By letter dated December 17, 1977, Warren Christopher, on behalf of the Secretary of State, submitted the treaty to the President for transmission to the Senate stating nine reservations, understandings and declarations proposed by the Department of State, which would make the Convention conform to United States law. The Department of Justice expressed the view that with these reservations, understandings and declarations, there are no constitutional or other legal objections to United States ratification of the Convention.

By letter of February 23, 1978, Jimmy Carter, as President, transmitted the Convention with the State Department's reservations to the Senate of the United States "with a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, . . .". The Senate of the United States has not yet acted upon this request.

This matter came to the attention of the annual meeting of the American Bar Association at Dallas, Texas in 1979. The Section of International Law of the American Bar Association proposed a resolution urging the Senate to give its advice and consent to the ratification of the American Convention, subject to 9 stated reservations, understandings and declarations. These 9 reservations are the same as those proposed by the Department of State to the President, and in turn by him to the Senate. The best recitation of these reservations and the rationale behind them is contained in the Section Report to the House of Delegates. This resolution was adopted by voice vote of the House of Delegates at the 1979 annual meeting.

Word-limit rules of the Washington State Bar Association prevent inclusion in this Report of the 17 page Convention and the American Bar Association Report containing the 9 reservations and their rationale. The Section will make several copies of these documents available at the Washington State Bar office, at the Resolutions Committee meeting and at the Bar Association annual meeting. We urge study and review of these documents.

RECOMMENDATION

The World Peace Through Law Section of the Washington State Bar Association at its meeting on June 4, 1981, has approved this Report and recommends adoption of the attached resolutions. It is the hope of the Section that the Bar can make a significant contribution to international human rights, and ultimately to World Peace by adoption of the attached proposed Resolutions.

The Million-Dollar Nose

John J. Michalik

Director of Continuing Legal Education

While in attendance at the Real Property, Probate and Trust Seminars in Yakima at the end of May, I had the opportunity to talk to quite a large number of State Bar members concerning CLE and a variety of other matters. One particular conversation sticks in my mind: a brief chat I had with one of our younger Bar members who, among other things, told me that he was genuinely impressed with that particular program, as well as other CLE and non-CLE Bar Association efforts; wished that he could make some contribution to Association activities; but, in the final analysis, was frustrated because he felt he had nothing to contribute. That reminded me of a story which, while hardly original, may illustrate a point.

It seems that there was a young man, let's call him Bill, who was very interested in proposing the subject of marriage to a young lady who we'll call Mary. Bill was, however, a little hesitant about doing so because Mary's father, a wealthy banker, had made it pretty clear that he would not approve of his daughter marrying anyone who was not capable of supporting her in the style to which she had been accustomed in life. Bill was "bright" but penniless and mentioned his predicament to a lawyer friend. The lawyer looked at Bill for a moment and said, "You know Bill, that's a very fine and noble nose you have—if I offered you a million dollars for that nose would you cut it off and give it to me?" Bill, of course, laughed and said, "Absolutely not." As it happened, the lawyer was also acquainted with Mary's father and a week or so later had lunch with him, during the course of which the discussion came around to the topic of Bill and Mary. The father allowed as how Bill was a nice enough young man, that he expected Bill to propose one of these days, but that he just could not bring himself to approve of such a marriage because of Bill's financial situation and dim prospects for the future. Quite casually, and choosing his words carefully, the lawyer replied that, "You may be underestimating Bill. For instance, I happen to know that he recently turned down a million-dollar offer for one of his assets." The father was more than a little impressed and, a few months later, when Bill proposed to Mary, not only gave his consent but, after the marriage, made Bill a vice-president of his bank. As is to be expected in such a fairy tale, they lived happily ever after.

Now, there are a number of versions of that story and this one has been shortened considerably to fit the space available. Nonetheless, and regardless of what you think of the story, it does illustrate the point that we all have something of value, including talent as well as "assets" of other types, to contribute. That does include, in case the point is still unclear, contributions to the ongoing work of what is, after all, your Bar Association—be those contributions to CLE (and we are always receptive to volunteers in that area) and to all other phases of the Bar Association's activities. An organization of this type succeeds in what it does largely because of the volunteer efforts of its members, and I can quite honestly say that, from years of observation, the level of that voluntary effort in this Bar Association, and the quality thereof, is extraordinary. However (and before climbing off of this particular soapbox), I would point out, to the person I talked to in Yakima and others having similar desires and feelings of frustration, that there is always room for more.

PIERCE REPORT

by GEORGE KELLEY

Rumor from Hawaii is that Ron Peters has passed the Hawaiian Bar Exam. Ron, who used to practice in these parts until his brain became soggy, left for the island to make his fortune selling real estate. The fact that he was able to get out of the rain and out of the practice of law was an inspiration to us all. Now it appears he has backslid into his old ways.

Ron's practice in the Spanaway-Parkland area was taken over by Dennis Comstock, a fact which would probably not warrant mentioning except that we are attempting to recognize some of the attorneys practicing in the more remote areas of the county. Next month a report on Puyallup if we can get directions.

Judges Robert Peterson and Nile Aubrey gave a report to the local bar at its monthly dinner meeting on their first six months on the Superior Court Bench. To their credit neither said he had to take a cut in pay to go on the bench, and more noteworthy, neither has a single case under advisement.

It now appears that a State Bar Association Card and a valid Washington Driver's License are required for admittance to our local jail. If you have forgotten your I.D. card you can try getting arrested.

If arrested, look for the Department of Assigned Counsel at its new offices in the Norton Clapp Law Center. Department Director, Fred Weedon, held an open house the other day, pointing out that the Law Center, being in the same building as the U.P.S. Law School, comes complete with a source of cheap labor.

QUICKIES: Doug Tufts and Dan Pepple claimed to have finished the Vancouver Marathon in a tie. Jim Lowry, recently returned from a small boat trip to Alaska, where he assisted in the landing of a 52 pound salmon. An assist is sort of like racing for 26 miles and ending in a tie—a fine accomplishment with the glory being shared.

BENTON-FRANKLIN REPORT

by Stephen T. Osborne

In the many months since the last report there have been moves aplenty in the Benton-Franklin Bar. Edwin F. Alden has joined the firm of Westland, Liebler and Ivey in Kennewick. William "Jay" Flynn has joined the firm of Shea, Kuffel and Lindsay. Benton S. Clark has opened an office in Kennewick. Steve Crum & Associates and Paine-Lowe both of Spokane have opened branch offices in the Tri-Cities. It's not just the bird hunting that brought those poachers down here. Tom Heye has returned to the area and is practicing in Richland. Butler, Cowan, Walker, Jonson & Moore have hired 2 new associates, Larry Zeiger, a UPS grad and Linda Waite of Gonzaga. They will be moving to their new offices in the Foster & Marshall Building in Richland in July. Critchlow & Williams have also hired a new associate, Kenneth Pedersen, also a Gonzaga graduate.

The dauntless Legal Beagles softball team, 2-28 in the first 2 years have started off with a rousing 4-1 record. After adding another dentist to the roster the team has a new look. Remnants of the past surfaced in a recent game when one unnamed batter stroked a single into left field, but was thrown out at first by the left fielder. This writer was warned that the services of the batter's radiologist-father would be needed if his name appeared in this column. Keep up the good work Beag's.

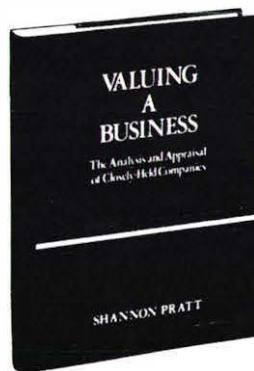

The annual bar fishing trip to Westport has been cancelled. But Mike Johnston graciously has offered to throw a party celebrating the opening of his new swimming pool. He will be providing all the refreshments. What a guy!

David Welts To Be State Bar President, 1981-82

David A. Welts of Mt. Vernon has been selected President-Designate of the Washington State Bar Association for the 1981-82 term, by unanimous vote of the Board of Governors. Welts will assume office at the close of the State Bar Annual Meeting in September.

Welts, 46, is a partner in the Mt. Vernon law firm of Welts and Welts. He was graduated from the University of Washington School of Law and admitted to practice in Washington State in 1959. He became a member of the State Bar of Arizona in 1961.

Welts served as an Army infantry officer from 1959-62, completing duty in Army Intelligence and in the Judge Advocate General Corps.

Returning to Mt. Vernon in 1962, Welts joined in the practice of law with his father, the late R. V. Welts, and his uncle, the late Richard O. Welts. He had continued in practice with that firm for the past 19 years, and the present partnership also includes Nick Nemo.

Welts has been involved in many activities in service to the profession. He is a former member of the State Bar Board of Governors (1978-80), representing lawyers in the Second Congressional District, and past chairman of the Civil Rights Committee. He is presently chairman of the State Bar Disciplinary Board.

As president, Welts will succeed Bradley T. Jones of Seattle. He will also set a precedent by becoming the first president in the history of the Washington State Bar Association to assume the office that was once held by his father. The late R. V. Welts was State Bar president in 1950-51.

Dues Increase Notice

The Board of Governors at its July meeting has voted an increase in the annual dues to be:

First two full years of practice	$ 95.00
Thereafter	165.00

The increase is to be effective with dues payable as of February 1, 1982. The increase compares with the prior dues levels of $85.00 and $140.00.

The increased schedule is within the already prevailing range of dues in other West Coast states. It is caused primarily by the impact of inflation on salaries, printing, postage, rent and other normal expenses of the Association.

Other than as caused by inflation, a lesser basis of increase involves: One additional staff lawyer and one staff person to assist in the increasing disciplinary case load; the scheduled (every two years) issue of the membership directory; a directory of services and resources; completion of the scheduled consumer pamphlet series; and an increase in public relations programs for the press and with local bar associations. It includes a contingency allocation of 2½% of total budget which is hoped to permit maintenance of programs without immediate likelihood of a further dues increase.

Estate Planning Seminar

The Eugene Chapter of the Oregon Estate Planning Council announces their 6th Annual Estate Planning Seminar entitled "Estate Planning for Inflation," to be held Friday, September 25, 1981, at the Emerald Valley Forrest Inn, Creswell, Oregon (9 miles south of Eugene, Oregon—off Interstate 5).

This seminar is designed to meet criteria for continuing education set for all disciplines in the states of Oregon and Washington. Approval has been obtained or has been requested for both states.

Northwest Women's Law Center Sponsors CLE

On October 23, 1981 the Northwest Women's Law Center, a non-profit tax exempt organization is sponsoring a CLE entitled Advising the Middle-Income Client: Selected Legal and Financial Issues. Six and a half CLE credits have been requested for the program that runs from 9:00am to 5:00pm. The information provided will be at a basic level.

The seminar is divided into three parts. The first part will include elements of financial planning, property acquisition and its ramifications, home purchase/sale, and insurance. The second part covers managing the estate. This will include income tax planning, trusts and other contingent planning and retirement planning.

The third area will discuss disposing of the estate. This section will include wills, handling the decedent's estate and estate and inheritance tax. A special section will deal with the new usury statute and its effect on financial planning.

policies are in effect in 71% of the partnerships and in 40% of the professional corporations responding to the survey. Such obligations commonly involve payments to former partners or shareholders based on past earnings, on the value of work in progress and accounts receivable, or on other measures. Some law firms (60% of those with agreements and 26% of the total sample) provide a greater benefit to a partner who has reached retirement age, than to one who withdraws at an earlier time of life.

Two-thirds of professional corporations, and an equal proportion of the partnerships reporting, report the presence of a funded IRS-approved pension plan. There is a greater prevalence of funded pension plans in larger firms than in smaller firms. The median partnership contribution rate to prefunded retirement programs was 7.5% of compensation. For professional corporations the median rate was 10%.

Law Firm Retirement Practices

Law firms generally have a late retirement age, when a retirement policy exists, and retirement payments to partners are generally limited, according to a special survey newly published by Altman & Weil, Inc., of Ardmore, Pennsylvania, a management consulting firm which provides services to the legal profession.

The study documents current practices with regard to the important and sometimes controversial subjects of voluntary and mandatory retirement, purchase of a partner's interest and retirement funding. Information for the study was provided by 270 partnerships, 183 professional corporations/associations and nine sole proprietorships. One-lawyer offices are not included.

One of the key findings of the study is that only half of the partnerships and only 42% of the professional corporations which provided data have a formal written agreement covering retirement age and payments. Formality increases with size. 80% of the largest firms in the study have a formal agreement covering these topics.

Half of the firms which have formal retirement agreements include therein a mandatory retirement age provision. This is about a quarter of the survey respondents. The most common mandatory retirement age is 70. Smaller firms tend to have a somewhat earlier mandatory retirement age than larger firms.

A majority of the firms with formal retirement agreements have unfunded payment obligations to partners at time of retirement. Such

At the recent annual convention of the Washington Association of Legal Secretaries held in Spokane on May 1-3, the East King County Chapter was honored as the top chapter in the State out of 22 Chapters.

Local member Nancy M. Monson, PLS, was elected National Director for the State Association.

Honors Awarded at GSLSA Annual "Bosses Night"

Greater Seattle Legal Secretaries Association held its 26th annual "Bosses Night" May 12, 1981 at the Washington Plaza Hotel in Seattle.

Honors awarded were: Attorney Melvyn Jay Simburg—"Boss of the Year"; Mary T. Blazek (Ryan, Swanson, Hendel & Cleveland) "Legal Secretary of the Year"; and Judith A. Lackstrom (Franco, Asia, Bensussen, Coe & Finegold) "Member of the Year".

Greg L. Tinker (Morrow, Longfelder, Tinker & Kidman) was Master of Ceremonies. "A Slice of Life", written by Beryle Ryall, PLS, was presented by the Amicus Cure-All Players. The cast included the Honorable Frank James, Keith Callow and Frank Eberharter; attorneys Curley Austin and Lem Howell; and legal secretaries Patti Jennings and Diane Parisien.

The outgoing president, Judith Everett, PLS, presented incoming president, Claudia Welch, PLS, with the association's gavel. The new president then introduced the outgoing officers and new officers to the audience.

Notice of Petition for Reinstatement of Richard Hart

A hearing before the Board of Governors will be conducted August 22, 1981, to consider the petition of Richard Hart, for reinstatement as a member of this Association after disbarment. Pursuant to Discipline Rules for Attorneys DRA 8.5, on or prior to the date of the hearing, anyone wishing to do so may file with the Board of Governors a written statement for or against reinstatement.

Letters or written statements should be directed to the Board of Governors, Washington State Bar Association, 505 Madison, Seattle, Washington 98104.

In Memoriam

M. Bayard Crutcher, 63, of Seattle, died June 27. He was admitted to the Bar in 1946.

Arthur E. Simon, 85, of Seattle, died July 14. He was admitted to the Bar in 1920.

Discipline

Don Minor Disbarred

Everett attorney Don Minor was disbarred from the practice of law on June 10, 1981, by order of the Washington Supreme Court. Minor had stipulated to disbarment based upon a violation of DRA 5-104(A) prohibiting business relations with a client, and DR 1-102(A) (4) prohibiting conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation, and based upon prior discipline.

Benjamin A. Luchini Suspended

Everett attorney Benjamin A. Luchini was suspended from the practice of law pending the outcome of disciplinary proceedings against him, by order of the Supreme Court entered May 20, 1981.

Jack M. Sawyer Suspended

Bellevue attorney Jack M. Sawyer was suspended from the practice of law pending the outcome of disciplinary proceedings against him by order of the Supreme Court entered June 2, 1981.

Charles W. Shepherd Suspended

Edmonds attorney Charles W. Shepherd was suspended from the practice of law for a period of forty-five days, beginning May 29, 1981, by order of the Supreme Court entered May 11, 1981. Mr. Shepherd was suspended pursuant to stipulation, after a hearing had been held, for violation of DR 5-101(A) and DR 5-104(A), based upon his entering into financial transactions with a client, including drafting a will for the client which named him as a beneficiary, without full, complete, and adequate disclosure to the client.

Eugene A. Stock Issued Two Reprimands

Marysville attorney Eugene A. Stock was issued two Reprimands by the Board of Governors at its meeting on June 19, 1981. The first Reprimand was issued for conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation in the drafting and filing of a purported corporate resolution changing signature authority on a corporate account, when he knew the resolution to be false. The second Reprimand was also issued for conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit, or misrepresentation, and resulted from Mr. Stock's participation in the making of false statements during the course of promotion of land sales. The conduct involved occurred in 1977.

NEW LAW automates law office accounting.

You've asked for a single system that would provide all the data and word processing capability you need in a single, easy-to-use system without compromising in one area or the other. Now you can have it from Wang.

Introducing LAW

LAW (Legal Accounting from Wang) is the high quality legal timekeeping, billing and accounting package you would expect from Wang. It operates on Wang's new Office Information System (OIS) that integrates word and data processing on one flexible, user-oriented system.

Single source responsibility

Since Wang provides both the hardware and the software, you have a single source of responsibility for all your service needs.

Good news for Wang users

If you have any Wang word processing system, you can upgrade your system so that it can use LAW.

Why compromise?

Make your law office more productive with LAW. For more information on this exciting new development, call Knute Fenstad at 322-9233.
